"Into the Jaws of Death" (dramatic). It seems strange how little respect and honor is paid to the firemen in America in comparison with their heroic work.

We seem to look upon them as a body of men that are merely hired to put out flames. True they are, but what small amount of pay they receive for risking their lives almost every week, perhaps every day. There is a work of heroism, bravery and of self-forgetfulness to save the lives of others, and what little recognition of their heroism this Edison picture may bring to them is slight indeed compared to what the world at large owes them as a body of heroic workers. It's at the Dreamland.

After reading an item in The Times describing a half dollar struck off in 1814 and owned at present by John Young of Malletts Bay, F. W. Farnham of Camp street examined a number of old coins in his possession, and found that he had two half dollars of the description, only of earlier date. One of the coins was issued in 1812, while the other was struck off in 1813. One side of the pieces shows the head of Liberty, with seven stars to the right and six to the left, while underneath is the date. On the reverse is the eagle with outstretched wings and the scroll containing the motto, "E Pluribus Unum." Stamped legibly on the thin edge of each coin is the inscription, "half dollar or fifty cents." Both pieces are well preserved. Mr. Farnham also has a collection of Spanish pieces of early date beginning with the Spanish mill dollar down to the smallest Spanish piece, known in America as the four pence.

The "hospitality" social held in the vestry of the Universalist church last evening was a distinct success so far as accomplishment of the purpose of the affair was concerned. In spite of the inclement weather, the attendance was large. The evening was devoted largely to games and other amusements. A short program was carried out in a highly entertaining manner and added variety to the occasion. During the latter part of the evening, dainty refreshments were served to the assembled company, a feature not the least appreciated. The idea of socials, which are held at the church every few weeks during the winter, is to promote a more general acquaintance among the members and friends of the church. Plans for the socials are made by the hospitality committee elected at the church meeting. Last evening's affair of this nature was one of the most delightful of the winter.

Mrs. Spaulding is quite seriously ill at the home of Mrs. Frank Jones of South Main street.
